BOMBING ATTEMPT FOILED BY SHERIFF'S DEPUTIES

FT. LAUDERDALE — Following the arrest of three Ft. Lauderdale youths on charges of attempting to blow up a high school, Broward County Sheriff Edward Stack displayed six rifles, a homemade time bomb, drugs and literature on Cuban revolutionary Che Guevara and guerrilla warfare, all confiscated in connection with the arrests. Taken into custody were 19-year-old Terry Lee Miller, Charles Franklin Norris V, 18, and a 16-year-old youth who was turned over to juvenile authorities. Sheriff Stack said deputies received a tip from the FBI and were waiting for the youths when they arrived at Northeast High School. They were arrested when they attempted to leave. Sheriff's officers found and disarmed a homemade time bomb surrounded by containers of gasoline which had been placed on the roof of the school. Miller and Norris were charged with three counts of conspiring to bomb and burn a public building and with arson. The Sheriff said there was no apparent motive. (Photo by Tom Mosier, Miami Herald)

Cooperation Marks Large Drug Raid

CLEARWATER — Four-way co-operation between law enforcement agencies brought about one of the largest narcotics raids in the history of Pinellas County — 19 arrests on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to sale and possession of LSD.

The December 23rd raid was spearheaded by Sheriff Don Genung's deputies and officers from the Clearwater Police Department with assistance from the state attorney's office and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Some 24 officers were involved.

The lawmen moved in so quickly the youths, ranging in age from 15 to 20-years-old, were unable to put into effect an escape plan which included setting off tear gas grenades and releasing several poisonous snakes.

Sheriff Genung said the 12 grenades were believed to be from a military arsenal.

Found in the two-story, five-bedroom house were 300 LSD tablets, three pounds of marijuana, scores of amphetamine and barbiturate pills, hypodermic syringes, burning spoons, smoking pipes and a German Shepherd which was supposed to be vicious but turned out to be friendly.

Genung said the home was a gathering place for teenagers to buy and use drugs, and with its closing, a major source of narcotics in the county had been cut off.

The home had been under surveillance by vice detectives for six weeks prior to the raid.

THE SILENT MEN OF LAW

Some of us mortals have indeed a thankless task
In work that grants no laurels
from the human race;
Yet, humbly and devoted,
they refuse to ask
That theirs be far much more than just the Lord's good grace.

They choose to follow silently their call with true devotion, beyond the quest for lure of purely selfish gains;
As men of law, they spurn the oft accepted notion that they are not immune to those with twisted brains.

But we shall wish upon them life's most crowning glory, and that their selfless deeds
may shine without a flaw, to be a beacon light
To flare eternally the story:
some of the best that lived and died
were silent men of law.

Written by "Broward's Poet Laureate," Dr. Bruno C. Schmidt, "The Silent Men of Law," appeared in the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel and was dedicated to the Florida Sheriffs Association.

SANTA TOTALS CAR; CHRISTMAS CHARGED

TITUSVILLE — Deputies of the Brevard County Sheriff's Department had their faith in Santa Claus and Christmas itself shaken after experiences on the highways during the holidays.

Two of Sheriff Leigh S. Wilson's deputies, Sgt. Reebe "Red" May and John Estes, went to investigate an accident about 8:30 p.m. Christmas Eve, and found Santa Claus decked out in his finest red suit, standing beside his wrecked Cadillac, uninjured but shaking his head.

Santa, actually a Cocoa businessman, had been visiting the children of his employees when he overturned his car at a dead end intersection.

The next day, Christmas arrived with too much spirits. Willie Bruce Christmas that is, Deputy Ralph Garvin had to charge him with driving while intoxicated and reckless driving.

Videotape Has Many Uses; More Foreseen by Sheriff

CLEARWATER — One of the most recent and widely acclaimed pieces of equipment to be added to the law enforcement arsenal is the portable videotape recorder — and as usual the Pinellas County Sheriff's Department was one of the first to put it into use.

Sheriff Don Genung intends to use it to obtain more "driving while intoxicated" (DWI) convictions; record riot scenes for possible use in court; tape crime scenes which can never be completely reconstructed and train recruits with real life situations.

Stationed at the county jail, a deputy using the videotape camera can record the arrival of a person charged with DWI and have indisputable evidence to produce in court showing how the person's normal faculties were impaired as sobriety tests were administered.

(The admissibility of videotape as legal evidence has already been upheld by the Florida Supreme Court when the Court approved the admission of a videotaped murder confession. Videotape can be used as evidence while movie film cannot, because film can be cut and spliced and the splice not detected but no way has been found to splice tape so it is not detectable.)

In riot situations the camera will record the actions of rioters and enable positive identification for trial. The rioters will not only be seen but also heard as the camera records both picture and sound.

Tapes made at the scene of a homicide, robbery, safe job, fatal accident, or breaking and entering can first be used by investigating officers to review evidence and perhaps find something missed at the scene; then in court to establish certain facts and finally at the training academy to familiarize recruits with what to expect in various cases.

"The potential for utilizing videotape is unlimited," Sheriff Genung said. "We are still in the preliminary stages of developing it as a law enforcement tool and as the equipment is further refined and the cost reduced, many more applications will doubtlessly be found."

Recruitment of Migrants May be a Solution to Lack of Understanding

FT. LAUDERDALE — An unusual program to place migrant workers in nine county sheriffs' departments in south Florida will soon be inaugurated as the result of an experiment in Hendry County where a single black migrant received training to become a deputy sheriff.

According to William Johnson, executive director of the Community Action Migrant Program, the Hendry County migrant will be graduated from the police academy in West Palm Beach and is on the sheriff's office payroll.

"We're convinced that the problems between target people (migrants) and the law is lack of understanding," explained Clark Black, director of the region which includes Hendry County and embraces west coast and central Florida areas.

"We believe that training migrants in law enforcement is the answer and that it could have national significance," Black said.

At a meeting of CAMP's board of directors it was disclosed that every south Florida county has agreed to take two migrants in each program.

Although CAMP provided a stipend toward the training of the Hendry County migrant, Broward County's Sheriff Edward Stack has committed himself to take two Spanish deputy trainees and his office will underwrite the full expense. In that county, which includes Ft. Lauderdale, Pompano Beach and Hollywood, 25 per cent of 80 deputies are black but not a deputy can speak Spanish.

In Dade County which includes the Greater Miami area, CAMP officials have had a request for 50 trainees but requirements that they have a high school education and no previous police record have made finding recruits impossible, CAMP directors said.

SPEEDERS BEWARE

LIVE OAK — Suwannee County Sheriff J. M. Phillips, Jr. (left) explains the operation of a recently purchased radar unit to County Judge Reece Brown. The unit works by sending out a high-frequency radio beam which strikes a moving vehicle and bounces back to provide an accuracy within one mile per hour. "The main purpose of this radar unit is to slow down the speeders — not to make money," Sheriff Phillips said. (Suwannee Democrat photo)

BOYS RANCH

News about the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch, a home for needy and worthy boys the Florida Sheriffs Association is operating on the Suwannee River near Live Oak, Florida.

Boys Ranch is Relicensed—and Then Some

Each year the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch and all other child care centers, must be inspected and re-licensed by the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to continue operating the next year.

When Division of Family Services Director Emmett S. Roberts wrote Bay County Sheriff M. J. (Doc) Daffin, Chairman of the Boys Ranch Board of Trustees, to notify him the Ranch had been relicensed for another year, he had words of praise for the Ranch program.

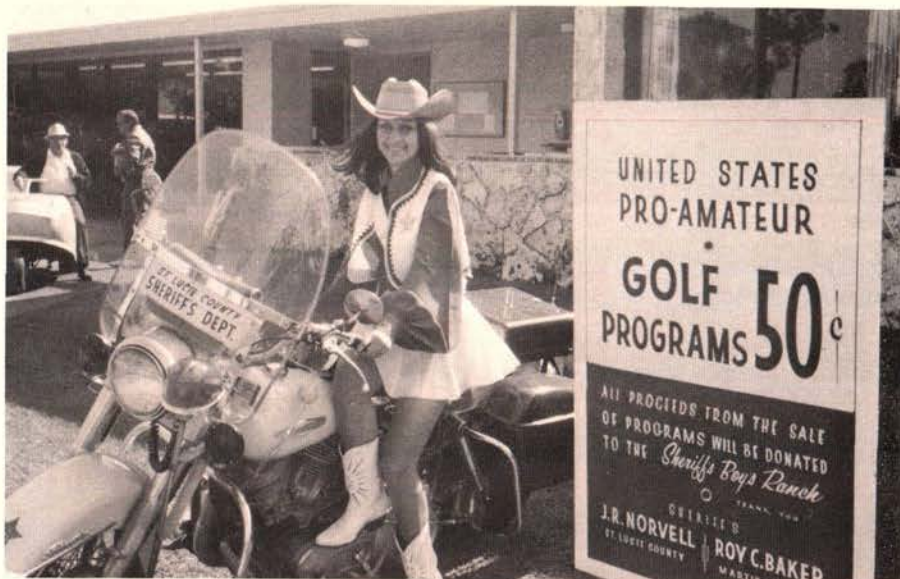

"The Advisory Committee of the Division was informed that progress this year (1969) has been more than the erection of two buildings (Carleton and Suzanna Tweed Gymnasium and Fred and Edith Conn Cottage) as fine as they are. The quality of the administrative staff has been much improved and it is noteworthy that they are in the midst of a modern administrative and supervisory course which will result in a much closer coordination, which of course means a better, richer program for the boys."

He saw as significant the design of Conn Cottage with its smaller number of boys, giving them an opportunity for more individualized attention and the chance to have a meal in the cottage instead of going to the cafeteria.

Roberts also praised the regrouping of the boys in the cottages according to age, so each cottage has a wide range of ages instead of all the same, to further promote the feeling of being a family.

"Finally, may we congratulate the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch for its interest in establishing a Sheriffs Girls Villa. We are acquainted with the ladies group which has worked so diligently and sensibly on this project. We hope it will work out. The need is great."

GIRLS BOOST SALES; SALES BOOST RANCH

FORT PIERCE — Responsible for the brisk sale of golf programs at the United States Pro-Amateur Golf Tourney were lovely Dur Hinson (above) and three other beauty queen contestants who gave their time to sell them. Backed jointly by Sheriff J. R. Norvell of St. Lucie County and Sheriff Roy C. Baker of Martin County, program sales netted $82 for the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch. St. Lucie County Chief Deputy Lanie Norvell (right) accepts the check from C. F. "Chuck" Ankrom, director of golf for General Development Corporation.

No Gift Exchange

Employees of the State Division of Adult Corrections didn't exchange Christmas gifts as usual at their Christmas Eve party.

Instead, they pooled the money they would have spent for gifts and gave it to the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch.

Their check in the amount of $50 was presented by Director Louie L. Wainwright and Karl Roesch, Purchasing Agent.

It was accepted by Florida Sheriffs Association Attorney John A. Madigan, Jr., and the Association's Executive Director, Carl Stauffer.

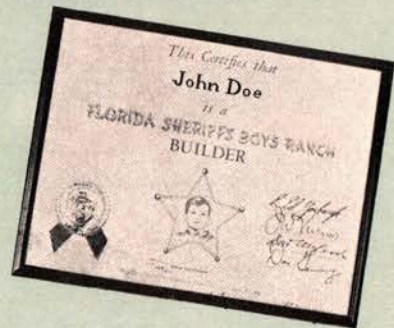

The Division of Corrections has been responsible for at least two previous gifts to the Boys Ranch. One was a boat and trailer; the other was a bull for the Ranch herd.

JAIL NICKNAME IS OFFICIAL

DeLAND — County jails are seldom called just that — they usually pick up a nickname along the way. In Pinellas County for example, Sheriff Don Genung has to live with the "Genung Hilton." But Sheriff Edwin H. Duff of Volusia County has one of the most unique nicknames for his jail. (And one he has been known to use himself.) "Duffy's Tavern," was made official when Bill Dreggors, president of the MT Bottle Collectors Association, (left) presented Sheriff Duff with a walnut plaque containing two antique bottles made by a manufacturer in Rochester, N. Y., which first began production in 1842. The bottle on the left was used for "Duffy's Vinegar" and the other for "Duffy's Malt Liquor." The inscription on the plaque reads, "Presented to Sheriff Ed Duff, proprietor of Duffy's Tavern, October 1969."

No More Calls For "The Telephone Sheriff"

KISSIMMEE — They called him "The Telephone Sheriff" because he made many of his arrests by telephone . . . just called the suspect and told him "I've got a warrant for your arrest, come on in."

He never carried a gun, never shot anyone, and never got shot, according to one of his sons.

He became a living legend in law enforcement, and now Young Tindall is dead.

He passed away on January 12, 1970, at the age of 94, leaving behind for the record books a 64-year career in law enforcement.

He was born in Thomas County, Georgia, April 15, 1875. In 1886 his family moved to Kissimmee, and he lived out the remainder of his life in this central Florida cattle town.

During the first 44 years of his law enforcement career he served as a policeman and deputy sheriff. He was elected Sheriff of Osceola County in 1932, and held this position until he retired in 1953.

He was married to the former Nora Sullivan, of Kissimmee, who died in 1955.

His six surviving children are: Paul, of Waycross, Ga.; Mrs. Lorena Phelps, of Ocala; Capt. Claude Tindall, who is in charge of the Belle Glade substation of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office; Woody, who is currently a used car dealer in Kissimmee following a 25-year career in law enforcement; and Mrs. Agnes Whidston and Mrs. Janie Harrelson, both of Kissimmee.

A member of the family estimated that he is survived by 150 grandchildren, great grandchildren and great, great grandchildren.

"WE TRY HARDER" — BAY COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT

PANAMA CITY — Thieves struck hard, burglarizing three homes in the Red Cloud Fish Camp area in one night, but the Bay County Sheriff's Department struck back harder. An intensive investigation was launched turning up suspects who were placed under surveillance. Besides arresting several persons, Sheriff M. J. (Doc) Daffin (left) said all the stolen loot was recovered. Examining the evidence with Sheriff Daffin was Undersheriff Tullis Easterling. (Photo by Tom Needham, Panama City News-Herald)

Ban on Sale of Cleaning Fluids Urged By Juvenile Judge

FT. LAUDERDALE — A ban on the sale of dangerous cleaning fluids to juveniles has been suggested by Broward County Juvenile Court Judge Frank Orlando as a way of cutting down on the sniffing of these dangerous solvents by teenagers.

The judge has appealed for a law that would place limitations "on the sale of any type substance which has the potential for abuse through inhalation."

As an example, he would like to see transmission fluid, which some youths have been inhaling, sold only to licensed drivers and used at the service station.

"Glue sniffing is passe," according to Orlando. He said the youths are now buying and sniffing solvents which could cause damage to the liver and brain. He warned it could also be fatal.

Besides transmission fluid, the teenagers are using cleaning fluid and lacquer thinner which the judge pointed out "are very easily obtained by youngsters since there are no restrictions on their sale."

Orlando cited one case where two youths brought to the juvenile court had "one dollar-a-day" habits and were walking in off the street and buying the fluids at gas stations.

Broward County Sheriff Edward Stack said the County Narcotics Guidance Council, of which he is chairman, is investigating the extent of narcotics and drug abuse in the county and will include sniffing in its studies.

Judge Orlando asked the Council to consider seeking legislation which would require educational programs in the schools dealing with prevention of drug abuse.

BRAKES APPLIED TO "JOY RIDING RING"

FT. LAUDERDALE — A three month investigation by detectives of the Broward County Sheriff's Office was climaxed by the arrest of three juveniles who officers said were members of a "joy riding and burglary ring."

Sheriff Edward Stack said the three are suspected of taking 139 autos over a 10 month period and carrying off some 45 house burglaries.

The youths, one 14-year-old and the other two 15, were on probation from juvenile court.

"Mostly it was just joy riding," one deputy said. "They would actually walk to Miami Beach, take a car then abandon it in Hallandale. Sometimes they'd take a battery and sell it, but that was about it."

In the house burglaries, deputies said only three rifles, and a small quantity of the reported $3995 in loot has been recovered.

THAT'S NOT CARBONATED SODA IN THOSE JUGS

MILTON — Sheriff Leon Hinote of Santa Rosa County (in the suit) wouldn't be concerned if it was just carbonated soda. However, he and other law enforcement officers were very concerned with the contents of the bottles because it was moonshine. In all there were 42 gallons of shine. Cooperating in the seizure were (left to right) Jay Police Chief Donald Stanton, Deputy Ed Copeland, Sheriff Hinote, Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Tom Barrow and Sgt. Jack Barnes of the Sheriff's Department. (Photo by the Press Gazette, Milton)

PAR Program Aimed at Parents Who Need to Know

CLEARWATER — Under the joint leadership of Pinellas County Sheriff Don Genung and Pinellas-Pasco State Attorney James T. Russell, a program has been launched to alert parents whose sons and daughters may be using drugs and narcotics.

The PAR (Parental Awareness and Responsibility) program is attempting to make adults aware of their responsibilities to their children, their children's friends, the community, law enforcement and the moral standards of the community.

"Operation PAR will mount a two-pronged attack on the problem of youthful drug use in connection with what appears to be a trend toward permissiveness on the part of some parents," Russell said.

"Not only do we wish to contact each and every responsible parent in the county to make them aware of the problem and how to recognize the symptoms, but we hope to set up counseling and rehabilitation for the youthful user himself."

As a direct appeal to the young people, the state attorney has announced youthful drug users can obtain immunity from prosecution if they turn themselves in at his office.

"We would gain nothing by placing every youngster who uses pot, or any other narcotic, illegally, in jail. We are after the sources — the pushers — and it is for this reason that I, as state attorney, can offer immunity to the youngster who is a user if he contacts our office before he is arrested," Russell said.

"After his arrest it is too late and he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law," he said. "We want to get the youngsters while they can still kick the habit and keep their records clean for their future."

To get the message of PAR across, Sheriff Genung said radio, television and newspapers will be asked to carry promotional campaigns of the public service variety.

One of the first efforts to contact parents involved the printing and distribution of 500,000 leaflets containing facts parents should know about the drug problem.

To help pay for the printing, the Sheriff's Junior Deputy League contributed $500.

Genung and Russell have been emphatic in telling people many of the youths are being affected psychologically, and that minor drug abuse is the forerunner of hard narcotics.

Talking about the PAR program in speeches throughout the county, Genung has pointed out that federal narcotics statistics show 95 per cent of drug addicts being treated in federal and state hospitals started out by smoking pot and taking LSD and amphetamines.

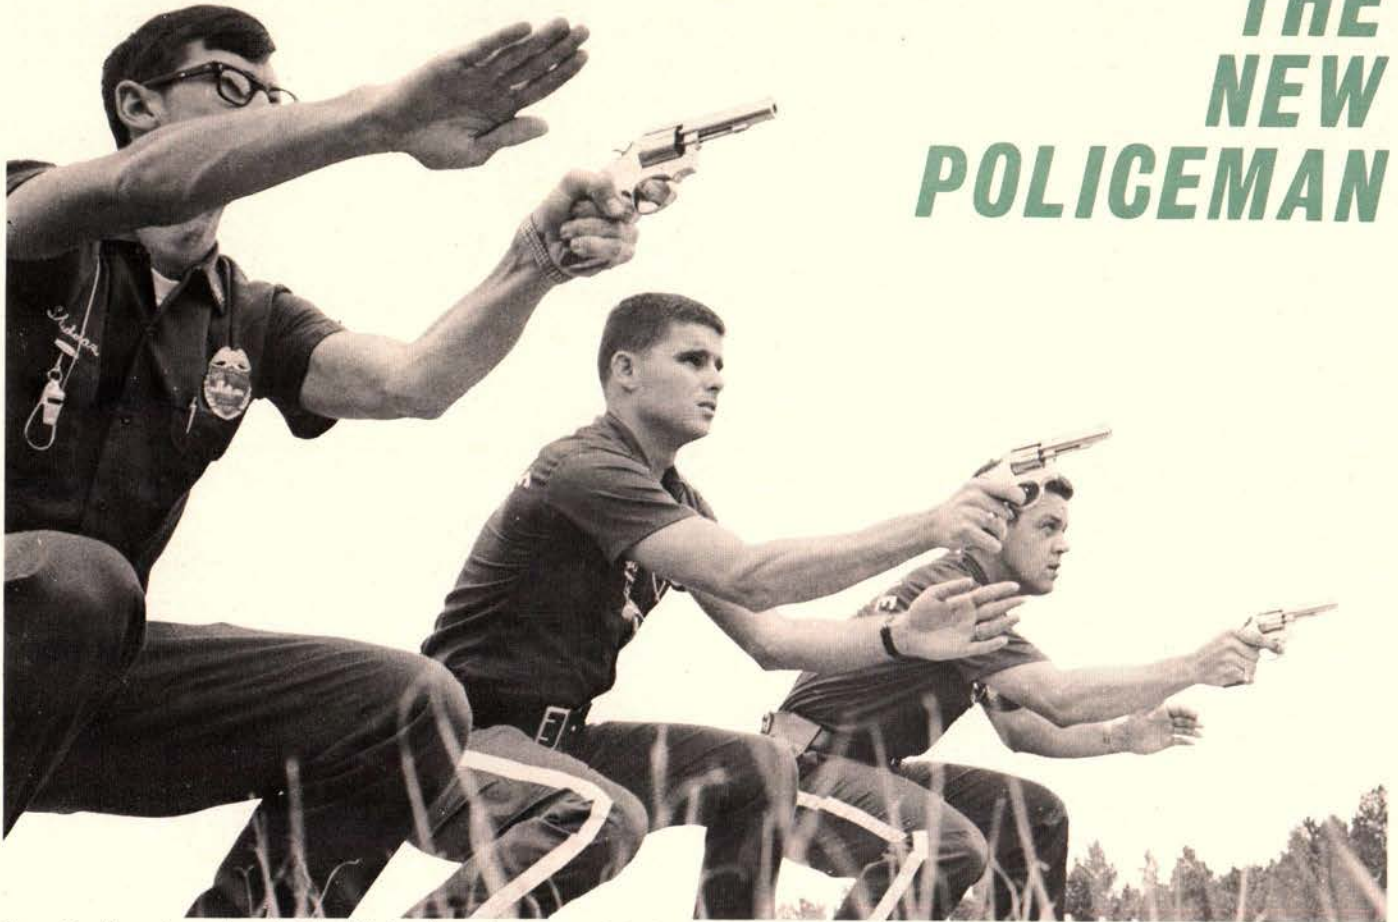

With 73 per cent of these patients becoming third and fourth time offenders, they travel a "no-ending" road once they start, the Sheriff pointed out.

THE NEW POLICEMAN

JACKSONVILLE — You wouldn't believe Steve Daugherty. He's a dream badge-toter. He's a young man with a handsome, sensitive face and he speaks of militant blacks and long-haired youths with understanding and sympathy, though you'd never mistake him for a bleeding heart. He's the new policeman.

Last week he was completing 15 weeks' instructions at the Training Academy operated by Sheriff Dale Carson. The Academy was established to train and retrain the police forces of the new consolidated government. It does much to formulate the new policeman.

The men, most of them quite young, were engaged in mock combat with long wooden batons under the critical eye of Sgt. J. D. McCormick. Daugherty parried and struck and dodged and the look on his face was not mock concentration but pure eagerness, pure dedication. The other faces around him wore the same expression.

Steve spent two years in a liberal arts college, accenting psychology, history and religion. Perhaps this explains why there's nothing elementary or black-and-white about his philosophy as a lawman. He regards it as a privilege to wear a police outfit but figures the uniform puts him in an obligated committed position rather than in a privileged one.

"The uniform itself doesn't make you any better than anyone else," he says, "but in order to fit the uniform you have to have a little upstairs. You have to be a lawyer, a doctor, a preacher."

What's particularly gratifying about the rookie's presence on the force is that he's not an exception to a rule. There are 18 others much like him in his class. Daugherty is one of a new species that wear their uniform with a difference. Not that the old species was bad for their time. Even now a veteran who keeps his ideas young is the best of the best. But the "bad cop," the "mean cop," of which there were never many, is practically extinct. Soon, the well-meaning but often uninformed, unenlightened lawman will also be listed with the passenger pigeon and the dodo. IF the training centers recruit training officers, men like Sgt. J. D. McCormick and the Academy's executive officer, Sgt. E. W. Holt, get the right kind of material with which to work. Daugherty and the new breed are that kind of material.

Don't think the new policeman is softer because he thinks more. Old-timers know he's no fragile egghead. They acknowledge that he has better, more efficient law enforcement weapons and that he uses them with skill. Daugherty and his companions receive extensive training in the use of firearms, defensive tactics and crowd and riot control. They're tough.

They have to be tough-minded too. The educational hours in which these novice law-enforcers and re-training veterans engage are enough to make a college kid blanch. Nine hours daily they plunge into the depths of courses on public relations, human relations, mental illness, traffic law enforcement, traffic direction techniques, accident investigation, first aid, patrol techniques, juvenile procedures, arrest techniques, disorderly conduct cases, drunk and drunk driving cases and prowler and disturbance calls.

They get into criminal law, laws of arrest, search and seizure, rules of evidence, scientific aids, collection, identification and preservation of evidence, fingerprint evidence, report writing, crime scene procedure, field notetaking and crime scene recording, interviews and interrogations.

Next comes instruction on how to treat auto theft, larceny and stolen property cases, burglary cases, assaults, sex crimes, vice investigations, injury and death cases, court organization and procedures, courtroom demeanor, legal aspects of firearms and constitutional law. Then the recruits get several weeks of field training. Fifteen weeks of intense mind-boggling instruction in all.

There's no such thing as a dumb cop.

It's obviously not easy to become a policeman. In addition, the pay is still pretty poor and the job can be dangerous, even deadly. A policeman views an unpleasant close-up of the steamy, seamy side of life too. Aside from criminals, some of the general public have no great love for the man in blue.

Why would anyone want to be a lawman?

Daugherty and his fellow new breed officers talk about it during classes. Each has his own reasons. Daugherty was influenced by a brother with the Maryland State Troopers.

But there are deeply ingrained feelings that come to expression slowly, reasons that are part of Daugherty's very flesh and being.

"I've always had a feeling that people who put their honest sweat into getting something, anything, had a right to keep it. And I think these people should be protected from a bum who doesn't want to get a job, a man who tears his living from the hands of someone else."

There's no danger that his feelings about crime and criminals might make him into a hard-nosed, self-righteous policeman.

"I'm aware of the individual. I know I can't infringe on someone's rights just because I'm a policeman. I have to know the law and abide by it with everyone.

"And I have to talk to people as human beings. That's what I learned on the street during field training, something you can't learn from books. How to talk to people."

Daugherty narrowed his eyes, thinking a moment.

"Even how to talk to the hard core criminal. I've found from even my brief field experience that you treat

"He regards it as a privilege to wear a police outfit, but figures the uniform puts him in an obligated, committed position rather than a privileged one," according to this Florida Times-Union article by Robert L. Smith. Photos are by Allan Walker and Roger Mullis.

the hard-core criminal the best he'll let you treat him. He sets the tone of the encounter. You do your job the best you can. You have to be aware of everyone's individuality.

"Take the man in the ghetto. I don't imagine that some of those people get but one good meal a day. No one acts or reacts normally on an empty stomach. I'll have to learn to consider that.

"Or the long-haired kid, the 'hippie.' There's always going to be prejudice against people who are judged different by the mass of society. My job will be to treat them as individuals. If they're juveniles, I'll treat them as juveniles, long-hair or short-hair."

All the fledgling blue-coats have found that being a policeman has influenced their civilian life as well.

"Some of my friends," says Daugherty, "have pulled away a distance. Some of them have moved a little closer. My good friends wouldn't care if I were a policeman, an astronaut, or a ditchdigger.

"One of the rough things, though, about this profession is that it could get to you psychologically. Especially certain cases you encounter. But you have to train yourself to leave your job behind when you're off-duty."

The trainees are conscious that a policeman always has an occupation hazard, a chance of catching a certain occupational disease. It's called sudden death.

"But you have to have confidence in yourself. You always have to feel that you'll come back home safe and sound at night. It's the only way.

"My wife was frightened about my profession at first. But now she's glad for me. She's happy because I'm happy. I'm happy to become a policeman."

Not just a policeman. A sensitive, decent knowledgeable, skillful public servant.

The new policeman.

CHICKEN THIEF OR GOOD GUY?

LAKE CITY — Oh well. Even a Sheriff can't get the right man every time. Billy Johnson might have looked like a chicken thief but Columbia County Sheriff Harry Spradley was soon informed by Mrs. Nell Nasser (left) and Mrs. Sara Brannon, both Sertoma Wives, that Johnson was really a good guy and was donating the chickens to a cookout for the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch. Over 100 Ranchers attended the feed at the Stephen Foster Memorial in White Springs. The Lake City Sertoma Club and the Sheriffs of Columbia, Suwannee and Hamilton Counties sponsored the outing. ## BASEBALLS FROM BIG-LEAGUER

TAMPA — The baseball diamond at the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch gets plenty of use as the weather begins to warm up and Tony Cuccinello, (left), third base coach for the Chicago White Sox wanted to be sure there were baseballs to throw out at that first game. In accepting the baseballs, Hillsborough County Sheriff Malcolm Beard noted this was not the first time Cuccinello has donated baseballs to the Boys Ranch.

HEROIC DEPUTY HONORED

FT. LAUDERDALE — It's a proud Sheriff Edward Stack (right) who looks on as one of his men, Broward County Deputy Harry Joseph Thiel (center), receives the annual law enforcement award presented by the Society of Former FBI Agents. The plaque was given Thiel by Judge William Clayton Johnson, Chairman of the Gold Coast Chapter. The deputy was honored for performance above and beyond the call of duty when he entered a burning house to rescue an elderly woman. (Photo by John Foster, Ft. Lauderdale Daily News)

COVER STORY

B-r-r-r There Goes Boyer-r-r

That's Ross Boyer on this month's cover riding a snowmobile — which is quite a switch for a Sheriff from sunny Sarasota. Sheriff Boyer is the President of the National Sheriffs' Association, and he was both guest of honor and speaker at the annual convention of the Minnesota Sheriffs Association, in Minneapolis, when the cover picture and the pictures on this page were taken. The dates were December 8-10. Although the snowmobile dumped him into a snowdrift several times, he found it easier to handle than the motorcycle he rode for the Florida Highway Patrol back in the 1940's. He said snowmobiles are used for search and rescue missions in areas that are otherwise inaccessible. Thieves, however, also use them to reach and burglarize summer cottages and unoccupied homes in remote areas. This was Sheriff Boyer's first venture into the far north in the dead of winter, and he got a real taste of the rigors of Minnesota law enforcement. There were 14 inches of snow on the ground and the temperature was pegged at 18 degrees. Next month's itinerary will find Boyer in Denver, with a strong possibility of more of the same kind of weather.

FUN, FOOD & FOOTBALL

TALLAHASSEE — Twenty-three boys from the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch made their debut on national television during the Florida State-North Carolina football game last season.

Viewers saw the "Florida Boys Ranch" banner displayed under the scoreboard every time the camera showed the score.

Hosting the Ranchers for a day of fun, food and football was the Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity at Florida State University. The college students not only paid for all the tickets but gave up their better seats to sit with the Ranchers in the end zone.

Before the game there were sandwiches and cold drinks, then after the game every boy got a Burger King whopper, french fries and a coke.

And before heading back to the Ranch, they were treated to free rides on the Giant Zoom Slide.

LIFESAVING ACTS RECOGNIZED BY SHERIFF

BARTOW — Saving lives is one of the most important jobs of a sheriff's department and when a citizen in Polk County makes a lifesaving effort, Sheriff Monroe Brannen recognizes the heroic act with an Achievement Award. In the top picture he is presenting an Award to Faye Rogers of Florence Villa who waded into the water and pulled a two-year-old child to safety after she saw him fall into the lake in front of the home where she was working. In the other picture, Sheriff Brannen and Eagle Lake Police Chief Otis Deese present an Achievement Award to George Davis who rescued a 19-year-old youth from a burning fallout shelter after an explosion. Davis, 82, of Eagle Lake, carried the youth out of the shelter, tore off his burning clothes and administered artificial respiration. The youth lived four days after the accident.

Bride was a "Rancher" too

It was a Boys Ranch wedding "all the way" when Miss Jeanne Schmutz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schmutz, became the bride of U. S. Air Force Sgt. Jerry T. Willard in the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch Chapel December 27, 1969. The bridegroom is a former Rancher and the bride grew into young womanhood at the Ranch before attending North Florida Junior College. The bride's parents (pictured at left with the newlyweds) were also at one time the bridegroom's houseparents. In keeping with the Boys Ranch theme, the bride and her attendants carried star-shaped bouquets. The wedding party (left to right below) included Miss Renee Preston and Miss Elaine Holmes, both of Live Oak, bridesmaids; Miss Cathy Hurst, Live Oak, maid of honor; Thurman Willard, uncle of the groom, from Greensboro, N. C., best man; and Wally and Mike Edwards of Lakeland and Tampa respectively, ushers. Cathy is the daughter of veteran Ranch staff member Arley Hurst and Mrs. Hurst. Wally and Mike are former Ranchers. The Rev. Spivey Brabham, of Orlando, (also pictured below) performed the wedding rites.

Nothing Lasts Forever...

...but there is an enduring way to preserve the memory of deceased relatives and friends.

We call it our "Memorial Fund."

When you make a donation to this fund, the name of the person whose memory you are honoring will be inscribed on our permanent memorial record and the next of kin will be notified. The money you contribute will be used for some project of enduring significance. For example our all-faiths chapel was financed with Memorial Fund donations. The form on the envelope flap can be used when making contributions to this interest-bearing fund.

All contributions to the Boys Ranch
ARE DEDUCTIBLE FOR INCOME TAX PURPOSES
