Welcome to a Special Edition of the Sheriff's Star Magazine. Inside these pages, you'll find our Annual Guide to Government (front section), followed by some intriguing news stories and features.

Many people are not aware of it, but the Florida Sheriffs Association (FSA) is more than just an association representing Sheriffs from our 67 counties. We actually represent the citizens of the state before the Legislature. We are one of the main voices getting stronger anti crime laws and helping to keep inmates locked up.

The FSA was a major force in getting the Legislature to build the necessary prisons, which enabled the 1995 Legislature to pass a law that required inmates to serve at least 85% of their sentences. The FSA advocated the 85% legislation along with groups like STOP (Stop Turning Out Prisoners), founded by Sheriff Charlie Wells.

We also fought strongly for effective solutions to our juvenile crime problem, and initiated the creation of the Department of Juvenile Justice in 1994.

As you'll read in this issue, according to state Senator Charlie Crist and Representative John Thrasher, the Florida Sheriffs were the driving force seeking solutions to crime.

Sheriffs wear a lot of hats. Sure, they enforce laws. They manage million dollar budgets in their counties. But they also make time to come before lawmakers, when required, to assure the long term safety of every person in this state.

And speaking of assuring continued safety and defending the law, the Florida Sheriffs Association will be undertaking a special project this year to build a Law Enforcement Memorial Training Center dedicated to the men and women who have given their lives in serving the 67 Sheriffs' offices throughout the state.

We envision this being somewhat like the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, a marble wall with bronze statues, where families and friends of our fallen heroes can visit and rest assured their loved one's memory lives on.

We are currently in the design phase, and are gearing up for a special fundraising appeal in this memorial effort. If you would like to help us honor those who have given their lives on behalf of citizens like you and me, please contact our office. The address, phone and fax number appear on this page.

And for those new members who might be receiving this, their very first issue of the Sheriff's Star, I'd like to wish you a warm welcome. We look forward to becoming your No. 1 source for crime prevention and law-enforcement information in the coming year.

Teamwork Still Making the Difference

By Tom Mylander, President
Florida Sheriffs Association

I had the opportunity to go through some past copies of the Sheriff's Star a couple of weeks ago. The copy dated March-April, 1987 caught my attention because this was the year Sheriff Joe Sheppard was our Association President.

The message Sheriff Sheppard presented was one of unity and working together. That message was certainly on target in 1987 and probably is just as important — if not more so — today.

We, as Florida Sheriffs, have come a long way over the years providing professional law enforcement to our citizens. One lesson we have learned well is that we cannot properly do our job without the support and cooperation between ourselves and other agencies.

The Florida Sheriffs have formed the Florida Sheriffs' Statewide Task Force and have put into effect a Mutual Aid Agreement between Sheriffs to assist each other in emergencies.

The Florida Sheriffs are working, not only among their own, but with the state and federal law-enforcement agencies to do everything in our power to provide the best possible service to our citizens and to the many visitors to our state.

Inter-agency cooperation is a must in today's world. We cannot be individual agencies only caring about ourselves. We must be a united front to combat the ever-increasing threat of sophisticated criminals who will do anything to victimize our citizens.

Making sure that we in law enforcement work together is only one part of the partnership which is needed to carry out our mission. The citizens of our counties and state are the key to our success. Without the trust and support of the people, we will fail.

We have come to understand that we must listen to our citizens on what is really important in our communities. The academicians would like us to believe that the concept of community policing is new and it is the latest buzzword in policing.

In reality, community policing and problem solving is nothing more than going back to basics — it's what policing a community is all about.

It is communicating and listening to the people who live in the community and really understanding the true needs. This is nothing more than working together to provide a safer community.

The Sheriffs' offices of today must function not only as an enforcer of laws and protector of the people, it must also be an educator. We must provide crime-fighting information to the community so we can work together as a partner to make our counties and state a safe place to live, work and raise our families.

We must do everything in our power to educate our young people about drugs and alcohol abuse and give them the tools to become productive adult citizens. We must inform our business community and our elderly about how they can protect themselves against fraud and scams. The citizens themselves must also get involved and care about their neighbors and community.

The message of unity that Sheriff Joe Sheppard sent in 1987 is still a key factor in today's world. The bottom line is that we in law enforcement, along with the citizens we serve, must unite to form a bond to send a strong message to the criminals that their activities will no longer be tolerated. And we are taking our communities back.

We in law enforcement would like to count our government officials and lawmakers in that partnership: to create legislation that looks out for the best interests of all citizens.

I extend the invitation to join our partnership in making a safer future for all.

Members of the Board of Directors serve two-year terms. They can succeed themselves only one time, and are thus limited to four continuous years. Terms are staggered so that six Board members are elected in even numbered years and six in odd numbered years. The Chairman and Vice-Chairman are elected by the Board for one-year terms and cannot be re-elected to succeed themselves.

Prior to 1990, officers and directors were elected at the Annual Mid-Winter Conference of the Association. Starting in 1990, as the result of a by-laws amendment, it became customary to hold the election at the Annual (summer) Conference.

FLORIDA'S STATE GOVERNMENT LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

THE SENATE

Senators in alphabetical order

Members of the Florida Senate are listed in two ways — first in alphabetical order by name; and then in numerical order by districts. If you are looking for a Senator and you don't know the name or the district number, perhaps you can identify the district by consulting the map on page 13.

★ STAR BRIEF

Freeloading ends at jails

It began with Sheriff Charlie Wells, the Manatee County innovator. Then Marion County Sheriff Ken Ergle heard about it, and now both Sheriffs are proposing to charge county jail inmates $1 a day for meals they previously got for free.

"After...we got the research data, I looked at it and saw I can save the taxpayers a quarter of a million dollars a year," Ergle told the Ocala Star Banner.

Meal charges will be deducted from inmates' canteen accounts. Those with no funds will be fed, but they will "run up a tab" to be collected later if money is deposited in their canteen accounts.

Wells told a newspaper reporter the dollar-a-day won't be a hardship. At that point, Manatee County inmates had almost $26,000 in their accounts.

Grant lights Cannon's fuse

DADE CITY — "I was thrilled," Pasco County Sheriff Lee Cannon told readers of the Pasco News when he announced he had received approval of a grant to fund a new Domestic Violence Unit.

"Domestic disturbances, and the resulting cases of physical violence, are one of the fastest growing areas of crime incidents in our county," he added in his newspaper column. "In just three years our calls for domestic related services have increased 28 percent."

The new unit will be one of the first in Florida, he said, and will provide specially trained officers as well as victim advocates to deal with domestic problems. They will attempt to identify and ameliorate patterns of escalating conflict, while also working with petitioners to enforce the protection provisions of Domestic Violence Injunctions.

Award-winner is tale-spinner

BARTOW — Remember Susan Goreck? She was chosen as the Florida Sheriffs Association's Deputy of the Year in 1991 after going undercover at great personal risk to help convict George Trepal, a high IQ Mensa member accused of poisoning his next door neighbor. And now, here's an update. Teaming up with Pulitzer Prize-winning writer Jeffrey Good, Lt. Goreck has co-authored a book titled "Poison Mind, the true story of the Mensa Murderer." Lt. Goreck is currently in charge of inspection services at the Polk County Sheriff's Office.

★ STAR BRIEF

That new kid in class was an undercover deputy

NAPLES — "Everyone got real quiet and our jaws just dropped," one student told the Naples Daily News. "I think it makes the school safer," said another. They were reacting to announcements that deputy sheriffs posing as students in three high schools had pulled off a successful sting operation resulting in drug charges against 33 suspects.

Fifteen of the suspects were students. The others were adults. Drugs involved included marijuana, cocaine, LSD and illegal sedatives.

The deputies, ranging in age from 23 to 25, attended classes for months without arousing suspicion. One was from Collier County, and two were "borrowed" from other counties. The Collier County deputy actually enrolled in the spring and moved up a grade with his class. The others began attending classes in August.

School officials were aware of the sting operation and cooperated in setting it up, but tight secrecy was maintained, and the deputies apparently had no difficulty in carrying out their charade.

An editorial pat for Nat

JACKSONVILLE — Elected in mid-1995, Jacksonville Sheriff Nat Glover lost no time in launching a community relations campaign, and the Florida Times-Union — with equal alacrity — gave him an "attaboy" editorial.

The Times-Union said Glover's decision to put deputies' names on patrol cars will help citizens to become acquainted with the officers patrolling their neighborhoods, and make them more likely to step forward with information about crime.

Also applauded were the 17 citizen councils formed by Glover to keep informed about neighborhood problems, and the 50 storefront substations he was planning to open so deputies could "meet and mingle with those they are assigned to protect."

"These changes fulfill campaign promise," reported the Times-Union story. "More importantly, they take some police-citizen interaction out of the adversarial setting and reinforce the idea that an officer is a friend."

★ STAR BRIEF

Check it out Dick Tracy

LARGO — A tiny "no hold, no aim" video camera not much larger than a deputy's badge was tested in 1995 by the Pinellas County Sheriff's Office, and is being readied for marketing to law enforcement agencies by a California manufacturer.

After Deputy Gary Williams, a traffic enforcement officer, wore the camera on his uniform shirt for three weeks, he told the Tampa Tribune none of the drivers he had stopped for violations had asked about the tiny gadget. They obviously didn't know the shirt front sentinel was sending sound and video through a transmitter on the deputy's belt to a recorder in the deputy's patrol car.

Videotaping motorists during traffic stops is routine, but miniaturizing the process is an innovation.

FLORIDA'S COUNTY OFFICIALS

County Judges are Elsewhere

County Judges are no longer listed as county officials. They are part of Florida's judicial system, and are therefore listed elsewhere in this publication under the Judicial Branch of State Government.

Source of Population Figures

The population figures used in this directory were certified by the Florida Advisory Council on Intergovernmental Relations to help counties establish the 1995-96 salaries of their elected officials.

Can't is a nasty 4-letter word in Sheriff Glover's dictionary

DAYTONA BEACH — Addressing a large audience of students at Bethune-Cookman College, Jacksonville Sheriff Nat Glover urged them to eliminate the word "can't" from their vocabularies.

"Don't let people tell you what you can't do," he said. "If you listen to those who tell you that you can't do something, you are listening to someone who could have, would have, should have, ought to, started to, but did nothing."

Glover, who is Florida's first elected black Sheriff, warned students that they "must suffer to achieve anything worthwhile." Then he added: "Every successful person can tell you about tough times."

Money-making idea went sour

When Broward County Sheriff's Office officials found out a jail inmate was running ads in a nationally circulated tabloid offering to sell "winning lottery secrets" for $4.95 a pop, they contacted the newspaper and the ads were pulled.

While nothing could be done legally to stop the ads, the Fort Lauderdale Sun Sentinel reported, jail officials closed the inmate's post office box "and were prepared to charge him with running a business without an occupational license." He was already facing a murder charge.

No regrets after 30 years

KEY WEST - Honored by the County Commission for 30 years of outstanding service, Monroe County Sheriff Rick Roth said he had no regrets about a career that took him from dispatcher through every level of command to the top position. "I still enjoy my job," he said.

Roth was praised for creating bicycle patrols, cracking down on environmental violations, increasing the county's neighborhood watch groups and cooperating effectively with state and federal agencies.

"Sheriff Roth has placed Monroe County's law enforcement in the forefront," said County Commissioner Mary Kay Reich.

New high-tech "wrinkle" can age you in a heartbeat

ST. AUGUSTINE — Suppose a child has been missing for two or three years, and the only available photo was taken long before the youngster disappeared. It's not a good likeness because children's appearances change drastically while they are growing up. So...what do you do?

At the St. John's County Sheriff's Office, Deputies have a high-tech answer. They use an age progression computer to "add years to" outdated photos and show what the subject should look like at the present time.

Loaned to the Sheriff's Office by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, the computer has also been used to remove backgrounds from photos for line-ups of suspected lawbreakers; and to enhance the images of bank and convenience store robbers produced by security cameras.

Elks; honored for excellence by Governor and Cabinet, Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, Civic League, Knights of Columbus, Citizens' Alert, VFW Posts and Kiwanis.

“Make Inmates Pay” and “Prison More of a Punishment” are Themes of 1996 Criminal Justice Legislation

The Florida Sheriffs Association's Legislative Committee has met several times over the last few months to determine its top priorities for Criminal Justice in the 1996 Legislative session.

The following “Crime Package” includes issues that Florida's 67 Sheriffs feel represent the public's best interests where public safety is concerned (items marked by Roman numerals). Specific bills that are being sponsored by senators and representatives are also included (items marked by numbers 1-7).

Common themes include making inmates pay to offset the costs of their housing and meals, and changing current prison activities that are common to prisoners from a recreation-orientation to a work and training orientation.

Florida Sheriffs Proposed 1996 Crime Package

I. Criminal Procedure. The Florida Sheriffs will support major revisions to Florida's Criminal Procedures to streamline the prosecution of criminal offenses. Legislation would limit the number of appeals allowed in criminal cases and further limit appeals to allegations of prejudicial error or fundamental error. The Sheriffs support legislation that would consolidate offenses and allow for the joinder of defendants when they are the same or similar in character. Proposed legislation would also eliminate the appeal of sentences that fall outside the sentencing guidelines. These changes would improve the efficiency of the criminal-justice system and provide for quicker punishment of criminals and lower costs to Florida's taxpayers.

II. Frivolous Inmate Lawsuits. The Sheriffs will support legislation that limits frivolous lawsuits by inmates. Florida's taxpayers should not have to bear the cost of meritless litigation by criminals.

III. Repeal of Sentencing Guidelines. The Sheriffs will support the repeal or further revision of the Sentencing Guidelines to assure that criminals are punished appropriately and the public is protected.

VI. Enhanced Penalties. The Sheriffs will support increased penalties for certain crimes — especially violent crimes against law-enforcement officers and the elderly.

V. Prison Construction. The Sheriffs will support the continued construction of additional state prison beds, and ways to incarcerate additional criminals in existing prison beds. Innovative methods to build prisons expeditiously and economically should be fully utilized. Work camps and other similar concepts should be considered. Unnecessary restrictions on prison construction or utilization, such as space requirements, should be eliminated.

VI. Discovery Depositions. The Sheriffs will support efforts to limit the use of discovery depositions in criminal cases, as they allow abuse and intimidation of victims and witnesses. Florida cannot afford to impose procedures that hinder the prosecution of crime and operate to the advantage of criminal defendants.

Florida Sheriffs Association's Proposed 1996 Legislation

1. Photographs of Robbers. The Sheriffs will seek legislation that would provide increased public protection from potential recidivists by requiring the Parole Commission and the Control Release Authority to provide Sheriffs with information on certain violent felony offenders who are being released into their counties. This vital information would include a photograph taken within 90 days of the offender's release. By compiling this information prior to release, time will be saved, and updated offender photographs will facilitate photo line-ups and increase the speed at which recidivists are captured and arrested.

2. Frivolous Inmate Lawsuits. The Sheriffs will seek passage of legislation that limits frivolous lawsuits by inmates. Florida's Taxpayers should not have to bear the cost of meritless litigation by criminals.

3. Minimum Mandatory Sentences. The Sheriffs will seek passage of legislation that imposes minimum mandatory terms of impris-

Sen. Charlie Crist Provides A "Sneak Preview" of Important Issues In 1996 Legislature

The Sheriff's Star wanted to get an inside look at what to expect in the upcoming Legislature. We asked Sen. Charlie Crist, a strong proponent of an improved Criminal System, and a creative problem-solver, to provide such a view.

The senator managed to squeeze the following interview in between committee meetings at his Tallahassee office in January.

Q. What are some of the public safety-related issues that you think will be important in this year's Legislative session?

A. Certainly, to be sure criminals are incarcerated. The passage of the STOP (Stop Turning Out Prisoners) Act was a tremendous move in the right direction last year, and I think it's fundamentally important to make it part of our Constitution through an initiative we're proposing.

Senator Crist

Legislators seem to agree that public safety is the top issue, but it's taken us a long time and we don't want to lose ground. We want to make sure it's not just the issue that's in vogue for the moment. If prisoners have to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences, we don't want lawmakers to retract on that issue. Having it part of our Constitution assures that won't happen.

The first line of the U.S. and Florida Constitutions has to do with ensuring justice and domestic tranquility. If we believe this is of utmost importance — we can't have criminals only serving 30 to 40 percent of their sentences. I fundamentally believe we have an obligation to citizens to support this initiative that law enforcement has so badly needed.

I can only imagine how frustrating it must be for (law-enforcement officers) to make the arrest, have the state attorney make the prosecution stick, and the judge hand down the sentence, then have the person let out of prison on early release.

I don't have the numbers, but it's got to be awfully expensive to have them continually going through the system over and over again. We owe it to our citizens to stop this process.

I think the citizens are crying out for justice. It's not law enforcement's fault — they're doing their job. We need a prison system that works and supportive legislators, and I think we're starting to see that.

Still, it's important to remain vigilant about it. This is an issue that doesn't go away. It should not be ignored. To do so costs lives.

I am hopeful that the climate is still pro public safety and the legislators will make the right decision to make STOP part of our Constitution. If not — the people will act — there's no question in my mind.

Q. I understand that you're leading the effort in changing our prison system to one of self-sufficiency and accountability.

A. We're trying to move from a system that provides recreation to its onment for murder or attempted murder of a law-enforcement officer and for taking an officer's weapon. The Sheriffs will also seek a minimum mandatory term of imprisonment for aggravated assault or battery of an elderly person.

4. Prisoner Room & Board. The Florida Sheriffs will seek passage of a bill that will require county jail inmates to pay for their subsistence costs. The bill will also provide that an inmate in the county jail must disclose all his income and assets and that an order directing payment of the inmates subsistence costs shall survive against the inmate's estate.

5. Crimes Against Dead Persons. The Sheriffs will seek passage of a bill providing criminal penalties for sexually violating a human corpse.

6. Probation Violator Costs. The Sheriffs will seek passage of legislation that will shift the financial responsibility to the state Department of Corrections for transporting, housing, feeding and medically caring for inmates in the county jail who are picked up for violation of probation.

7. Civil Process Clean-Up Bill. The Sheriffs will seek a bill to accomplish statutory changes needed for Sheriffs to more efficiently and effectively serve civil process.

inmates to one that provides vocation. Right now, we're sending a message to them that when you violate the law, you're going to go to a place where you're going to play volleyball and go to arts-and-crafts classes. It's a rather pleasant experience and it shouldn't be. I'm not saying it should be cruel and unusual punishment, but it should not be comfortable.

When I first started touring prisons, one of the places I visited had roast beef au jus on the menu for that evening. It seems to me taxpayers don't need to be providing those types of luxuries to prisoners. It's no wonder that Florida is No. 1 in crime.

The idea is to work at a self-sustaining system. For the crime to occur is bad enough, but when the citizens have to pay for the criminals' recreation — that's almost a second crime for us.

Prisoners ought to grow their own food and work to reduce the burden on the public as much as possible.

I introduced the Chain Gang legislation last session as a means of having prisoners give something back to the society they've taken from. There are lots of ways you can have fiscal responsibility.

I'm introducing a bill this year that will force able-bodied inmates to work at least eight hours a day, five days a week — just like law-abiding citizens. Less than half of our prison population has any job assigned to them. And of those jobs, most only require them to work four hours a day.

We have an opportunity to instill the work ethic and have education available to them in the evening. Most of these prisoners will get out — unless they're serving a life term — and at that point in time we would at least have a person who is educated and has a work ethic to become a productive citizen.

We also need to reduce the burden in the long run, in terms of food. A study I read recently said that prisons are currently growing less than one percent of their food.

I visited the Glades Correctional Institute where six convicts had tunneled out and escaped. I learned the prison was located on 5,000 acres of land. And at Starke (Union Correctional at Raiford), they have 17,000 acres of land. I can't see an argument against growing their own food. In fact, the reason Glades is so large is because they used to grow their own food years ago.

They've already begun a farming program within the department (of Corrections), so they know how to do it.

Q. It seems the involvement of our Sheriffs and other law-enforcement officers made a difference last session. With these and other issues pending, do you believe their participation will be as important in the 1996 Legislative session?

What they've been telling me, plainly, is: Lock up the criminals and keep my taxes down.

A. I really have to credit the Sheriffs and their involvement — their continuous involvement — throughout the session. When a Sheriff comes and testifies, there's no question about his credibility. His effect is immeasurable. I have to applaud their increased effort to do that, to be involved.

Last session, they were here constantly. It makes my job easier, because there's no substitution to having their support and their backing. We couldn't have done what we did in the Legislature last session without them and without the support of FSA's legislative director, Maury Kolchakian.

And I really need to give Kathleen Finnegan a plug for her efforts on STOP. For someone to suffer such a tragic situation, and still be able to explain to legislators and make a case against prisoners continuing to prey on our citizens — that's strength. It's a real tragedy what she went through, and yet she fights through it.

Q. What other issues should our readers expect to hear more about during the session?

A. One that hits close to home is frivolous inmate lawsuits. After the Chain Gang initiative, one inmate sued me for $75 million. The attorney general has been working very hard on this issue, I'm happy to say. But these types of lawsuits have got to stop. It only punishes the taxpayer again. The notion that these people have those kinds of rights — which only costs the taxpayers more money — is ridiculous.

Q. You're known for keeping in touch with the public and listening to constituents. How do you manage to keep your finger on the pulse of the citizens of Florida?

A. We get a number of requests for public speaking engagements — Rotary and other service clubs. When I campaign, I also go door-to-door and that's how I get a real sense of what the public wants. People are real comfortable talking to you on their front porches. And what they've been telling me, plainly, is: Lock up the criminals and keep my taxes down.

They're the boss. It's their state, and their government should serve them.

I tell people that we have all of these nice titles, and these nice offices — and I'm honored to hold the office that I do. But the most powerful office is "citizen." They're the only ones who have the power to throw us out at election time. They hold the true power.

I always encourage people to give input on issues. We get an awful lot of phone calls and mail and those are good vehicles to make your feelings known. Continued on page 55

Crime is Top of the Mind, Says Florida Representative Thrasher

Events that receive national exposure often dictate the issues that law-makers focus on during the annual Legislative session in Tallahassee. We asked Rep. John Thrasher his views on what events might shape the direction of the upcoming 1996 Legislature.

Q. A number of high profile incidents involving out-of-control juvenile crime and tourist murders led to sweeping changes in the criminal-justice system during the 1995 Legislative session. Do you think there's still a public outcry for change leading into the 1996 session?

A. When I first came into office in 1992, public safety and doing something about the criminal element was a major concern to my constituents — and that was before those big events. All the things we do in our lives — work, play, get an education — we need to be able to do in a safe environment.

In 1992, we started looking at Sentencing Guidelines to make sure people served time. That and assuring our correctional officers are given the resources they need to do the job are still high on my agenda.

I think we can get the right mix of laws to reach a better level of comfort in terms of public safety.

Those events — they're not the catalysts. The people back home — they're the catalysts and paired with the Sheriffs Association's efforts it has given (lawmakers) the strength and fortitude to do the right thing.

Sheriff Tramel, Sheriff Wells, (FSA Executive Director) Buddy Phillips and Sheriff Mylander — they don't just come and go. They are in the process, they know the members who are involved in the process. My local Sheriff (Scott Lancaster) was up here a few times last session. That's how you shape public policy.

So just because we don't have a major incident, I think criminal justice and public safety are still high on our priority list because they link back to everything — including economic development. To attract business, we need to have a healthy environment and healthy economy.

Q. What are some of the crime-related bills you'll be introducing or supporting?

A. I'll be introducing one of the Sheriffs Association's Crime Bills on Minimum Mandatory Sentences for people who commit felonies against law-enforcement officers.

We've had some folks who don't like mandatory sentences, but we need to send some kind of signal to law-enforcement officers who put their lives on the line that if someone (commits a felony) against them they will at least serve some time. There's got to be some deterrent and punishment.

Another bill I'm supporting is frivolous lawsuits by prisoners. It's something that's been a problem for a long time, and I think because there have been multiple issues out there — we haven't tackled this one. But we're going to do it this year and make it harder for these criminals to frivolously file lawsuits. I don't mean the legitimate ones, but the ones our Sheriffs have told us about — like the one where a prisoner sued because the food wasn't hot enough.

If they're going to file frivolous

I try to speak to as many people as possible in person, too, that's why I accept as many invitations as possible to give speeches. I think any opportunity the public has to communicate with lawmakers and give us their views is appropriate.

Editor's Note: The Florida Sheriffs Association named Sen. Charlie Crist "Honorary Sheriff" in 1995 for his tireless efforts on behalf of the STOP legislation and other important public safety-related issues.

Elected to the Florida Senate in 1992, Senator Crist's No. 1 priority has been to strengthen our criminal-justice system. He sponsored the amendment to bring chain gangs back to Florida, which earned him the nickname "Chain Gang Charlie."

Senator Crist has lived in the Tampa Bay area virtually his entire life. He is a graduate of St. Petersburg High School, where he was president of the Senior Class and quarterback of the football team. He played quarterback at Wake Forest University for two years before transferring to Florida State University where he earned his degree. His education continued at the Cumberland School of Law in Birmingham Alabama. Prior to running for office, Sen. Crist worked as State Director for U.S. Senator Connie Mack.

Senator Crist presently serves on eight committees in the Florida Senate and he is chairman of two — the Senate Ethics Committee and the Senate Ways & Means Subcommittee that oversees how money is spent for criminal justice.

lawsuits, they're going to have to pay the price, whether it's a deduction from their canteen account or paid in time served.

It's ridiculous, and they know it's ridiculous, and they're only doing it to harass us.

I think we'll continue to look at the prison capacity, and how we treat and reward our correctional officers. With the changes in sentencing guidelines and the 85-percent rule, there's a class of prisoners in our system who are more dangerous. We need to make sure our correctional officers have what they need to work in a safe environment.

I think the prisoners will have more work, and those televisions, weights and other things are going to go by the wayside.

The Sheriff in my county (Clay) was the first to get rid of televisions and weights in the jail. And in Florida, you can no longer purchase new equipment (weights) for prisons.

After all, our troops in Bosnia don't have weights. If these prisoners want to work out they can run around, do push-ups and calisthenics.

The Sheriffs Association, to their credit, has been very forceful on this issue. Representative Flanagan (R-Bradenton) is pushing for that legislation — to eliminate weights as a means of recreation in the prisons — on our side of the aisle.

We need to make sure our correctional policy assures prisoners are working so they know they're there to be punished. Prison should be a deterrent.

It really is an important issue even beyond our daily lives and the quality of life we enjoy. The Sheriffs Association has been better than anyone else in keeping it high on our agenda. They keep reminding us when we lose focus on crime issues that there was a victim of that crime. They remind the members not to lose sight that with every crime committed there is someone who is hurt or in pain.

Editor's Note: John Thrasher, a member of the Florida House of Representatives, received the Florida Sheriffs Association Legislator of the Year Award in 1995. First elected to the House of Representatives in 1992, he has also served as General Counsel to the Florida Medical Association. He serves as counsel to the Smith, Hulsey & Busey law firm in Orange Park.

In addition to his legal background, Representative Thrasher enjoyed a distinguished military career, receiving two Bronze Stars in 1970 during the Vietnam war, and an Army Commendation Medal in 1969 in Germany.

He currently serves as vice chairman of the Judiciary Committee for the House of Representatives, and serves on Corrections, Education, Insurance and Rules & Calendar Committees.

In My Opinion

Where are Florida's education dollars going? Not to prisons

By: John R. Smith
Vice President
James Madison Institute,
Tallahassee

Education's share of the Florida budget has fallen dramatically in the past five years — from 39 percent in 1989-1990 to just over 28 percent of the 1994-95 budget.

Contrary to conventional wisdom, however, the reason there are relatively fewer dollars for education is not because too many of them have been used to build new prisons.

In fact, spending on Florida's criminal-justice system, including prisons, has also declined as a share of the state's budget — from 5.2 percent* in 1989-90 to 4.8 percent* for the 1994-95 fiscal year.

What's going on? If prisons and law enforcement aren't "stealing" education's money, where is it going?

That question is not hard to answer. A review of Florida's past five fiscal-year budgets shows, for example, that one of the more successful rivals for state tax dollars has been the Department of Community Affairs.

The DCA enforces Florida's growth-management laws and for the past several years has been the state's fastest-growing department.

However, the most insatiable competitor by far, for Florida's scarce tax dollars has been the state's welfare entitlement programs, especially Medicaid. (U.S. Sen. Bob Graham recently said that Medicaid was "the great white shark that threatens to gobble up Florida's budget for schools and everything else.") This point bears repeating: Florida's welfare entitlements are devouring ever more of our state tax dollars.

For example, from fiscal year 1989-90 to fiscal year 1994-95, Florida's overall welfare spending increased from 24 percent of the total budget to 32 percent. And, in terms of actual dollars, the $12.3 billion spent on Florida's welfare programs in 1994-95 was $1.4 billion more than the state spent on education during the same time.

And, if you look at Medicaid by itself, it's easy to see why Graham is alarmed. The $7.6 billion spent on 1994-95 was a 204-percent increase over Florida's 1989-90 Medicaid spending, an increase over the five years of 41 percent per year!

Will Florida's welfare spending continue taking dollars away from other state needs such as roads, better law enforcement and education? Our governor and Legislature would do well to take a hard look at this question — and soon.

Editor's note: Smith uses figures from Florida's Ten-Year Summary of Appropriations Data, Volume 17, Office of Planning & Budgeting. The Criminal Justice figures include Corrections, Criminal Justice Administration, Department of Law Enforcement and Parole Commission. They do not include Florida Highway Patrol and Florida Marine Patrol, which are commonly included as a Criminal Justice expenditure.*

Myth or Fact? Make Sure You Get All of the Details

In the months leading up to the 1996 Legislative session, there are a lot of myths circulating about Criminal Justice issues. The Florida Sheriffs Association regularly sifts through these concerns to determine their validity.

To help clear up any misconceptions, our staff would like to share the following points and expose readers to a point of view not represented in editorials and opinion pieces that have appeared in the mainstream press.

Did You Know . . . ?

FACT: Though headlines in recent newspapers stated, "Florida has 3,900 extra prison beds," providing the false notion that lawmakers overreacted by building more beds than needed, the truth is that the "surplus" was actually a result of creative accounting.

A federal court once limited Florida's prison population to the number prisons were designed to hold, plus 33 percent. A state law enacted this year raised the limit, allowing designed capacity, plus 50 percent. That immediately gave the prisons authority to hold 3,500 more convicts. The balance comes from beds that were built since the 1995 Legislative session.

And because of the lawmakers' wisdom in requiring convicts to serve 85 percent of their sentences, there's not likely to be a "surplus" for very long.

FACT: Florida still has the highest violent-crime rate of any state in the nation and has, unfortunately, retained this title for more than a decade. Over 1.1 million crimes were committed in 1994, a little over 8,000 per 100,000 population.

Crime is still a very serious issue, and statistics show one way to hold the line on crime is to cut down on repeat offenders. Assuring that violent criminals are locked up will prevent them from preying on innocent victims.

FACT: Two of every five inmates in Florida are back in prison within three years. More than three-fourths of the growth in the state's inmate population since 1985 is due to repeat offenders coming back into prison. This fact fuels the argument for a system that metes out punishment, instead of concentrating on recreational activities such as lifting weights and watching television.

Lawmakers will be proposing legislation this year that can help put the punishment back into prisons, so they will serve as more of a deterrent to a life of crime.

FACT: Prisons save money. The cost of releasing violent criminals prematurely is far higher than the cost of building and operating prisons. When a violent offender is released after conviction because of insufficient prison space, the money spent apprehending, trying and convicting the criminal (perhaps numerous times) has been wasted. And although the cost of incarcerating criminals is not cheap, the cost of not incarcerating criminals is far higher for our society.

FACT: Crime costs lives and more. A study conducted by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms looked at a group of career criminals and found each had committed an average of 160 crimes a year. A 1987 National Institute of Justice study estimated that the average societal cost per crime in the U.S. was slightly more than $2,300. When considering the multiple crimes committed by chronic offenders, the cost of not incarcerating them could well exceed $350,000 per year per criminal.

Timeline Helps Chronicle Events Leading to Badly Needed Prison Legislation

Many people don't realize it, but the issue of building new prisons has a lengthy history.

In the late 1980s and early 1990s, Florida was in a "no prison growth" mode. In fact, from 1990 to May, 1993 only 183 prison beds were built. Early release — the concept of allowing offenders to serve only part of their sentences — was used to ease prison overcrowding.

In 1993, the state ran out of inmates who qualified under "early release" guidelines, so the legislators changed sentencing guidelines through the "Safe Streets" Act. This lowered the punishment imposed on criminals.

Adoption of the Safe Streets Act created a crisis for the public as law-enforcement officers were spending more of their time re-arresting inmates who became repeat offenders, and re-investigating their crimes. Sheriff Charlie Wells and individuals who were victims of these early-release criminals formed STOP (Stop Turning Out Prisoners). The FSA worked with such groups to convince lawmakers to force inmates to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences. Sheriff Bobby Knowles and Tom Tramel lead the FSA charge to bring about this policy change.

What follows is a timeline that chronicles events leading up to this point.

Sheriff Knowles

Sheriff Tramel

Year: 1983 - Legislature establishes Sentencing Guidelines. No habitual offender law. Judges can't sentence some offenders to state prison if they don't reach a certain minimum score based on Sentencing Guidelines.

February 1987 - State is forced to start setting convicts free because of over crowding.

Year: 1988 - Legislature passes:
 1. Habitual offender law
 2. Sentencing Guidelines amended so that judges can sentence criminals to state prisons for certain score minimums (first cell).

March 1989 - Violent criminals receiving early release because of prison overcrowding captures the attention of law-enforcement officers. Sheriffs call for more state prison beds in 1989 legislative priorities.

December 1989 - Sheriffs file suit against the Department of Corrections to prevent early release of certain violent offenders.

Year: 1990 through 1991 - Few prison beds were built.

August 1992 - Shortage of prison space cut average time served for inmates to 31 percent of sentences.

November 1992 - Florida Sheriffs Association legislative committee determines prison beds to be a top priority for the 1993 Legislative session.

January, 1993 - Newspapers publicize the fact that an Orlando child murderer would be eligible for early release.

Governor supports "Safe Streets Initiative" for 1993 session, which actually reduces the number of criminals going to prison and eliminates most minimum mandatory sentences. It released a pool of offenders at the rate of 405 a week.

Governor holds a "Safe Streets" conference in St. Petersburg. Sheriff Bobby Knowles, St. Lucie County, and Sheriff Tom Tramel, Columbia County, attend to voice Sheriffs opposition to early release.

February 1993 - Florida Sheriffs Association Winter Conference. Prisons made top priority. Hold press conference calling for more prisons. Second press conference called in Tallahassee to oppose "Safe Streets" Act.

Safe Streets Act passes House to propose revisions to sentencing.

March 1993 - Sheriffs Tramel and Knowles meet with Sen. Gary Siegel regarding prison beds. Sheriffs meet with Governor to express need for more prisons. Show Governor video on non-permanent (instant) dormitories.

FSA legislative meeting and receptions. Sheriffs tell legislators in attendance that prisons are top priority.

Sheriffs have modular prison dorm erected on Capitol grounds. Senate President Ander Crenshaw holds press conference in structure.

Safe Streets Act passes Senate Corrections Committee. Governor supports sentencing revision bill.

April 1993 - Legislative session ends with 3,000 new prison beds appropriated. Sentencing bills die in Appropriations Committee.

Governor holds press conference for Safe Streets Act on Capitol steps.

Sheriffs Knowles and Tramel meet with Governor to explain why Sheriffs could not agree to sentencing revisions and to propose instant structures.

Florida Sheriffs Association's Resolution urges Governor not to veto prison appropriation.

May 1993 - Governor vetoes prison appropriation as Line Item in budget.

Sheriff Knowles publishes letter to editors outlining Sheriffs' position on prisons.

Governor meets with Safe Streets group, police chiefs, prosecutors, state law-enforcement agencies, etc.

Governor's press conference calls for Cigarette Tax. No Sheriffs attend.

Law-Enforcement Training Goes High Tech

Sheriff Ken Ergle Brings "Virtual Reality" to Marion County

*By: Nancy J. Scharmach
Consultant, Marion County Sheriff's Office*

According to a recent column in Parade Magazine, Desert Storm was a quick and relatively smooth operation. One reason things went so well was because some of the troops were combat veterans before ever facing an enemy. They were trained on virtual-reality training systems that simulated warfare.

The Marion County Sheriff's Office has also gone "high tech," thanks to two new computerized simulators — which are expected to replace much of the current training done in real cars — and a Firearms Training System (FATS).

"There are only 43 driving simulators in 14 states," Marion County Sheriff Ergle says. "Mobile, Alabama, just received one last summer, and the next closest driving simulator program is in North Carolina."

Marion County Sheriff Ken Ergle tries out a driving simulator used for training.

Ninety percent of what officers do on the street is mental and 10 percent is technical, Ergle says. "Of our 634 employees, 400 or more drive (department vehicles), and we cover one of the fastest-growing counties in the United States."

Marion County is the fifth-largest county in Florida with 1,652 square miles. The simulators and the computer software cost the department $110,000, but it presently costs about $40,000 a year to send deputies to the driving range.

"We believe the simulators will pay for themselves by allowing us to offer our officers training four times a year, rather than once," Ergle says. And because it helps hone their driving skills, it will decrease the Sheriff's office liabilities and cut down the risk of accidents.

"Using the driving simulators not only will save money, but valuable time as well," Ergle says. "Instead of paying deputies overtime to train in real cars, driving back and forth from the range, they can come off the road and spend time with the instructor at the simulator and be back on the road in less than an hour.

"I'm a strong believer in using the latest technology to improve our skills and to save lives," Ergle says. "Time spent on a driving simulator really gives the officers more time to spend on patrol and with the citizens they are sworn to protect."

Sheriff Ergle says the idea for simulated training came from his previous exposure to other uses of technology he observed.

"When I became Sheriff, I felt that law-enforcement training was going to take a big step into the com-

Sheriffs urge Governor to declare State of Emergency because of crime/early release crisis.

Special Session on Prison Beds. Safe Streets Act passes.

1994 - Legislators realize the cost that early release of violent offenders and new Sentencing Guidelines have meant to taxpayers, and the threat it has created to public safety.

Sheriffs point out that the failure to build more prisons cost the local taxpayer the expense of re-arresting, re-investigating and housing criminals locally.

Through legislation, more prison beds are planned.

The crisis of juvenile crime is also addressed and the Department of Juvenile Justice is established. All responsibilities regarding juvenile offenders is transferred from the Department of Health & Rehabilitative Services to Juvenile Justice.

1995 - Legislators increase Sentencing Guidelines to partially make up for past problems. Through efforts of the Florida Sheriffs and support from STOP, a victims advocate group, legislation passed to assure offenders serve at least 85 percent of their sentences.

1996 - Average time served for inmates rises to 62 percent and new state law requires anyone convicted of a crime committed after October 1, 1995 to serve 85 percent.

Sheriff's Office Submits to Audit, Proves Fiscal Fitness to County Commissioners

Lee County Sheriff John McDougall proved he was willing to go to extremes in defending his fiscal accountability when he hired one of the Big Eight accounting firms, Deloitte & Touche, to provide a performance audit on his department last year.

The County Commission had asked for an operational audit because of the large increases in funding his department had received. Some of the increases ranged as high as 41 percent.

Sheriff McDougall

But rather than have commissioners assign their own firm to the task, McDougall decided to hire a company with a national reputation for audits.

When the final numbers were tallied and the report was released last spring, the conclusion

puter age, and when I heard about simulators, and saw road driving games in a video arcade, I began investigating the possibilities of using them in our training. I found that more sophisticated, computerized equipment was being produced for training purposes."

Sheriff Ergle's two simulators are equipped with five video screens placed in a semi-circle that surround the driver and give a different view from each one. They are designed to duplicate a real patrol car. The cockpit offers a full-size steering wheel, gas and brake pedal, and sound effects include working radios, emergency siren and lights -- even the sound of squealing tires.

The simulation is set up to be as realistic as possible for the deputy, right down to dispatch codes. Up to 900 simulated driving situations are available and can be stored in the computer. Programs include high-speed chases through a variety of city and rural streets, with accompanying hazards such as adverse weather conditions, traffic, pedestrians and other law-enforcement vehicles giving chase. Driving instructors can even make up their own programs.

The office has also started the precision immobilization technique (PIT) driving program.

These high-tech programs allow Marion County Sheriff's deputies to drive with great realism in high-speed chases, apprehend dangerous felons, and make judgment calls for the use of deadly force -- without endangering themselves, bystanders or equipment.

Training by using simulators also included the purchase of a $67,000 Firearms Training System (FATS).

"When I took office, I wanted to begin upgrading the department's training systems," Sheriff Ergle says. "The upgrading includes the purchase of the FATS simulator using money confiscated from drug dealers."

The simulator utilizes a laser disc and offers practice using four weapons: a revolver, semi-automatic pistols and a shotgun. The laser discs provide a wide range of computerized live-action scenarios -- complete with sound -- that are projected on the wall. Deputies are involved in the scene as it unfolds, and they react as they would on the street. The program offers deputies the chance to improve their skills, test their judgment, and update their knowledge of correct procedures.

"We currently train approximately 400 individuals on a quarterly basis, including corrections officers, patrol deputies and supervisors," Ergle says. "The department utilizes two instructors, one full-time and one back-up instructor. With this FATS simulator, I believe that in one hour we can safely expose an officer to 20 years' worth of violent street encounters."

Sheriff Ergle stressed that safety is of utmost importance during all types of training.

"We continue to have our deputies on the firing range, but they can test their skills right here through the simulator," he says. Like the driving simulator, expense and time are saved in drive time, with further savings in ammunition.

"We can't expect to receive the maximum benefit from our employees if we don't have realistic training," he says. With simulated programs, they can walk out of the classroom onto the street and be ready for all situations."

Sheriff Ergle believes that simulator training for law enforcement is certain to be the wave of the future.

"We've already had requests from law-enforcement agencies around Florida and other states to send staff here for demonstrations of our simulator training programs," he says. "I'm completely sold on this technology and the equipment."

The Marion County Sheriff's office plans to expand the current simulator programs, and add a new program started last spring called "Verbal Judo."

This program allows deputies to defuse violent situations by using non-threatening, non-intimidating verbal commands.

Like the U.S. Navy's use of simulators in training, Sheriff Ergle doesn't take the use of simulators lightly.

"We take these training programs very seriously," he says. "They are not video games. These programs are deadly serious. In a real situation, whether law-enforcement officers are killed in a traffic accident, or blown away, it's forever. I hope that with this type of training, no officer will have to deal with the 'forever' issue."

The Changing Role of Sheriff:

Today's Chief Law Enforcer Does More Than Just Keep "Bad Guys" Off the Street

Help wanted: Sheriff. Applicant must have superior people skills, excellent administrative management capabilities and working knowledge of Florida law. Ability to deal with politics a must. Prior experience managing a multimillion dollar budget a plus.

Job requires long hours, nights and weekends and occasional use of a firearm. Position will entail dealing with violent criminals and illogical county commissioners on a regular basis. The person filling this position will also be held accountable for his or her own actions as well as the actions of hundreds of employees. This person will be expected to answer to the entire population of the county (even the nutcase who periodically pickets the county jail).

Ability to fly at the rate of a speeding bullet useful, and possession of arms of steel preferred.

Individuals with weak stomachs, criminal histories or skeletons in the closet need not apply.

The role of Sheriff really has changed. Maybe not quite as much as the description above would suggest, but more so than previous decades to be sure.

Florida Sheriffs Association Executive Director Buddy Phillips knows better than most how much the job of Sheriff has changed. Phillips, whose career includes serving as Sheriff in six different counties, beginning in 1957, notes some of the changes as listed in the Florida Sheriffs Manual, the bible of the office of Sheriff which outlines responsibilities and administrative functions.

"At the time when I first served as Sheriff, the position was looked at strictly as a law enforcement officer," was that the Lee County Sheriff's Office was operating efficiently and spending taxpayers' money effectively.

And as for McDougall's budget increases — his budget has more than doubled from $18.7 million in 1989 to $42 million in 1995 — the audit explained.

"The significant funding required has been necessary in order to transform the department into a modern and efficient operation . . . While budgets have risen substantially in recent years, the Lee County Sheriff's Office's spending has been used to build a larger, better equipped and more effective organization."

Lee is actually ahead of a national trend of government performance measurement, says Scott Hamilton, who is in charge of planning and research for the Sheriff's Office.

The International Association of Cities and Counties commissioned Deloitte & Touche to choose 30 communities and set up guidelines for certain practices so that performance could be more accurately measured, he says. It's expected that in the very near future, all governmental agencies will have set standards in which to measure their performance compared to that of other counties.

"If you were to equate it to private enterprise — if you have General Electric or General Motors, the stockholders look at the performance based on earnings per share," he explains, "but with government there are no earnings. So there's really no benchmark to judge one agency against its peers."

Ahead of the trend

This isn't the first time Sheriff McDougall's ingenuity has been spotlighted. When he first came into office he was set on accreditation, and after diligent efforts, was able to win the distinction for his office.

His latest venture will make ongoing auditing possible, as a new $700,000 computer-aided dispatch system is capturing data and measuring important criteria such as response time on 911 calls. Once a benchmark is set, they can work on improvement, such as increasing deputies in areas with the highest crime-related activity. And when a community requests more patrol cars, they can look at the track record and suggest ways to provide increased service, then calculate the costs.

In a presentation to the Florida Sheriffs last summer, a Deloitte & Touche representative used the Lee County study to show how performance measures and outcomes will become the criteria by which law-enforcement officials will be measured in the future.

"Performance measurement and benchmarking focus on spending results rather than on money spent," said Bill Thomas, a representative with Public Sector Consulting. He suggested that Sheriffs will be using the types of analysis, such as the model at Lee County, to uncover opportunities for even better law-enforcement in the future.

When disaster strikes — the “cavalry” comes a runnin’

By Tom Berlinger
Director of Operational Services
Florida Sheriffs Association

Other than perhaps the O.J. Simpson trial, 1995 will always be remembered for the unprecedented number of hurricanes it produced.

From our vantage point in the Southeastern United States, Hurricane Opal was the biggest and baddest of them all — and when it hit, Florida’s Sheriffs were ready to respond to the call.

In years past, early October usually signaled the end of the Atlantic storm season and is a time when storm activity is winding down. Not this year.

Hurricane Opal flew through the Gulf of Mexico and struck north Florida with such ferocity that when the final tally was in, she caused the most extensive and expensive damage ever felt by Florida’s panhandle communities.

Located deep within the Florida Department of Community Affairs headquarters building, the state’s Emergency Operations Center (EOC) in Tallahassee becomes command central in times of disaster or during the days and hours preceding and after a hurricane strikes. Thus, when Hurricane Opal looked like it was certain to be headed for north Florida, several of the Florida Sheriffs Association staff members reported to the EOC and began setting up command operations alongside representatives of various state law-enforcement organizations; the Florida National Guard; the Department of Transportation; the Red Cross and a dozen other state and federal health, safety and welfare agencies.

Hours before the storm actually he says. “Now, the ‘90s Sheriffs are more involved with administration and management. Even the educational level has changed, as most of our 67 Sheriffs have some level of college education and many have advanced degrees.”

The office is much more diversified, he says. Sheriffs are involved in disaster preparedness, crime prevention programs, corrections, drug abuse and education programs.

“Years ago the offices were smaller and didn’t have the personnel, labor relations and budgetary challenges of today,” Phillips says. “The Sheriff is now more of an administrator, and he operates his office like a major business.”

Budgets run from one million to many millions of dollars, which means fiscal responsibility is also a big part of the job.

To become better acquainted with the job, newly elected Sheriffs attend a one-week course offered by the Florida Sheriffs Association.

A 200-page manual notes that while the Sheriff is a county officer, his powers and duties are prescribed by statute. A quick look at those duties show the diversity of talent that is required to serve effectively.

For example, the Sheriff must execute all orders of the Board of County Commissioners of his county and provide mutual aid to other counties when needed. It is his duty to provide meals and lodging for jurors, protect the confidentiality of juvenile records and prepare a budget.

It is the Sheriff’s responsibility to also oversee operation of the county jail.

He must also execute the process for collection of many taxes including: estate, intangible personal property, motor and fuel, cigarette taxes and sales and use taxes. He has the duty to enforce traffic laws of the state and report abuses and neglect of the elderly and children. When there is no other resource for it in the county, he also has the duty to impound stray livestock and destroy injured, suffering animals.

There are also some heady responsibilities that include acting as the executive officer of the various courts, which requires a Sheriff to attend all terms of the circuit and county courts and execute all process of the Supreme Court, circuit courts, county courts and Boards of County Commissioners of the state to be executed in their county.

There are some perks he’ll enjoy as Sheriff, of course: He is exempt from jury service and he usually gets a “company” car.

Perhaps the biggest trade-off: He must also submit to an election every four years.

made landfall, Sheriff's Association officials at the EOC issued a statewide call for help through the Florida Crime Information Center (FCIC), a statewide teletype communications network in place 365 days a year for use by the law-enforcement community. In a statewide broadcast message, Sheriffs were asked to bring teams of uniformed deputy sheriffs to a state of readiness — able to respond with short notice.

Unfortunately, unlike the "usual" south Florida hurricane strikes, the soon-to-be-hit area of the panhandle is so remote from central and south Florida that "short notice" does not mean "quick response."

In fact, a drive from Tampa or Orlando would take upwards of eight to 10 hours in convoy, depending on where they were to report. A drive from Miami could translate into 12 or 14 hours behind the wheel before the real relief work began.

Nonetheless, ever-ready to spring into action, Florida's Sheriffs, through their association's Mutual Aid pact — an agreement that was signed and sealed by all 67 Sheriffs several years ago — they would guarantee manpower, vehicles, and equipment on site regardless of how difficult the task, or how far the distance.

And come they did.

Over the two weeks following Hurricane Opal, nearly 250 different deputies from over 25 different agencies reported for duty to the hardest hit areas. All deputies who responded had to be completely "self-contained" for at least five days. That meant that not only did they arrive equipped with their usual supplies and marked patrol cars, but they had to have made their own arrangements for food, water, shelter, and fuel for their patrol cars. Without electrical power, they would be patrolling for days in areas that had no electricity, and no operable gas pumps.

Many deputies brought along their canines to be used for search and rescue, while others brought four-wheel drive vehicles, generators, chain saws and other forms of heavy equipment.

"We had several counties which responded with truckloads of spare tires for patrol vehicles," noted Buddy Phillips, the Florida Sheriffs Association's Executive Director. "In the first days following a major storm, aside from the expected problems they must deal with, many deputies endure one or more flat tires from the broken glass, fallen trees, and scattered debris — something that the average person never even thinks about."

"When a disaster of this magnitude strikes your home county, the wide and varied tasks you must face are so overwhelming that your local Sheriff's office personnel can be thrown into a state of shock, and near panic," noted Guy Tunnell, the Sheriff of Bay County which includes Panama City and Panama City Beach, two areas that took a direct hit from Opal and which suffered major outages of water, power and other necessities.

"But when I saw the sight of the 'cavalry' coming, deputies who came ready, willing and able to work long and hard hours to help us, and provide relief for our personnel, I was about as proud as I have ever been to be a Sheriff," Tunnell continued. "It was a sight for sore eyes."

Similar sentiment came from Larry Gilbert, the 15 year veteran Sheriff of Okaloosa County, the locale that includes Fort Walton Beach, Crestview and a number of areas that took several wind blasts of over a 100 miles an hour and torrential rain.

"There is nothing good about a hurricane," Sheriff Gilbert noted, "but if there was one wonderful feeling I experienced while it seemed our whole world was falling apart, it was that feeling of reassurance that my fellow Sheriffs would come through with such a massive response — without my ever asking for it."

"When another county gets hit as severely as mine did, other Sheriffs can now feel secure in knowing that we'll be there for them right from the start — and that they, too, will never again have to ask for assistance from my agency."

It's that sense of fraternity between 67 special individuals that makes Florida's Sheriffs what they are today...the first line of defense between natural disasters...man-made disasters...the 'bad guys' — and you.
