8A Payments enables county sheriffs and detention administrators to accept credit and debit card payments for cash bail directly at the booking counter — from the detainee themselves. Built on a government-as-merchant-of-record model, the solution ensures 100% of bail flows directly to the jail, with no vendor intermediary and no deduction from bail. Implementation requires only a simple card reader, no changes to existing jail management systems, and no specialized staff training. 8A Payments closes the gap between what the Framers intended bail to be — an act of personal accountability — and what the payment infrastructure has historically allowed.
